NIXON, SYMINGTON TOP PRESIDENTIAL CHOICES

Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. Stuart Symington (D Mo.) are their parties' strongest possible candidates for President, according to Congressional Republicans and Democrats who responded to a Congressional Quarterly poll.

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller (R) and Sen. John F. Kennedy (D Mass.) are regarded by their fellow partisans in Congress as the strongest possible nominees for Vice President.

In the poll, CQ asked each Member of Congress "to give us your judgment on your party's strongest possible ticket for President and Vice President." Anonymous replies were received during the second and third week of January from a cross-section of the House and Senate -- 209 Members -- comprising about 39 percent of the total membership.

Here are the detailed results:

Republicans

RESPONSE -- Replies were received from 76 Republican Senators and Representatives, comprising 41 percent of the total GOP membership of Congress.

PRESIDENTIAL CHOICE -- Nixon had a 4½ to 1 lead over Rockefeller as Presidential nominee. The results:

	Votes	Percentage
Nixon	59	78%
Rockefeller	13	17
Sen. Styles Bridges (R N.H.)	1	1
Don't Know	3	4

REGIONAL SUPPORT -- Members were asked on the questionnaire to indicate the sections of the country they came from, but not all did so. In the rather scattered Presidential returns from the South, Nixon and Rockefeller had equal strength; Nixon led by a 2-1 margin in the East and by overwhelming margins in the Midwest and West.

VICE PRESIDENTIAL CHOICE -- Vice Presidential votes were widely scattered, with 19 men drawing mention and almost one-fifth of the replies indicating no choice at all.

Rockefeller, with 16 votes, was the favorite running-mate for Nixon, as Nixon, with 6 votes, was the favorite Vice Presidential candidate of those who wanted the Governor for the top spot.

Only three men drew votes as running-mates for both Nixon and Rockefeller: Senate Minority Leader Everett McKinley Dirksen (R Ill.) and House Minority Leader Charles A. Halleck (R Ind.), each mentioned six times in all; and Sen. Barry Goldwater (R Ariz.), mentioned once as a running-mate for each man.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell drew four votes as a running-mate for Nixon. No other person was mentioned more than twice.

Those who got two votes for Vice Presidential candidate: Sen. Kenneth Keating (N.Y.), Ambassador to the United Nations Henry Cabot Lodge and Rep. Richard M. Simpson (Pa.), chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee.

Single votes went to: Secretary of Treasury Robert B. Anderson, Sen. Clifford P. Case (N.J.), Rep. Gerald R. Ford Jr. (Mich.), Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, Oregon Gov. Mark Hatfield, F.B.I. Director J. Edgar Hoover, Sen. Frank J. Lausche (D Ohio), Secretary of Interior Fred A. Seaton, Illinois Gov. William G. Stratton and Sen. John J. Williams (Del.).

Democrats

RESPONSE -- Replies were received from 133 Democratic Senators and Representatives, comprising 38 percent of the total Democratic membership of Congress.

PRESIDENTIAL CHOICE -- Symington had a 2-1 lead over his closest competitor, Kennedy. Substantial support appeared for two other Senators, Lyndon B. Johnson (D Texas) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D Minn.), and for Adlai E. Stevenson, twice-defeated nominee. There was a scattering of votes for seven others. The results:

	Votes	Percentage
Symington	44	33%
Kennedy	23	17
Johnson	19	14
Humphrey	17	13
Stevenson	16	12
Sen. Harry Flood Byrd (D Va.)	2
Sen. Richard B. Russell (D Ga.)	2
Gov. G. Mennen Williams (D Mich.)	2
Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D Wash.)	1
Sen. Frank J. Lausche (D Ohio)	1
Sen. John L. McClellan (D Ark.)	1
Gov. Robert B. Meyner (D N.J.)	1
Don't Know	4	3

VICE PRESIDENTIAL CHOICE -- Kennedy was the heavy favorite for the Vice Presidential nomination, drawing more than three times as many votes as the second choice, Symington. Trailing farther behind were Meyner, Johnson, Humphrey, California Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown (D) and 14 others. Here are the votes for the leaders:

	Votes	Percentage
Kennedy	54	41%
Symington	16	12
Meyner	9	7
Johnson	8	6
Humphrey	7	5
Brown	6	5
Others	21	15
Don't Know	12	9

Political Notes - 2

Backers of each of the other Presidential favorites -- Symington, Johnson, Humphrey and Stevenson -- named Kennedy as the best running-mate for their man.

Symington-for-President voters gave Kennedy 24 votes for Vice President, compared to four for their next choice, Meyner.

Johnson backers gave Kennedy nine votes, compared to four each for runners-up Symington and Meyner.

Humphrey backers gave Kennedy seven votes, compared to two for runner-up Symington.

Stevenson backers gave Kennedy 10 votes, and no other person more than one.

Those who named Kennedy as their choice for President picked Symington, Humphrey and Johnson, in that order, as possible running-mates.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D Tenn.), the 1956 Vice Presidential nominee, did not receive any votes for President or Vice President this year.

Others who received votes for the Vice Presidential nomination were: Sens. Albert A. Gore (Tenn.) and Clair Engle (Calif.), three each; Sen. George A. Smathers (Fla.) and Gov. Williams, two each; and Sens. Russell, Clinton P. Anderson (N.M.), Joseph S. Clark (Pa.) and Eugene J. McCarthy (Minn.); Reps. Wayne L. Hays (Ohio) and Leonard G. Wolf (Iowa); Govs. Leroy Collins (Fla.) and Luther B. Hodges (N.C.); Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York and Robert Kennedy, counsel of the Senate rackets committee, each with one vote.

Regional Support

Not all the Democrats who answered the CQ poll indicated the section of the country from which they came. But of the 109 replies that were so identified, Symington was the favorite for President in the South and the Midwest, Kennedy in the East, and Stevenson in the West. Here are the votes for the five leading candidates by region:

	South	East	Midwest	West	Unspecified Area
Symington	17	8	11	5	3
Kennedy	3	11	5	2	2
Johnson	8	3	1	5	2
Humphrey	0	7	8	2	0
Stevenson	1	2	3	7	3

The balance in Symington's regional support is almost as impressive as his over-all vote total. He was the only one of the five leaders who received at least 10 percent of his total vote in each region of the country.

Symington's lead over Kennedy in the South is notable in view of the fact that most Southern delegations to the 1956 Democratic convention backed Kennedy for Vice President against Kefauver.

Humphrey, who is still remembered for his fight on the civil rights plank at the 1948 Democratic convention, received no Presidential votes from the South.

SYMINGTON COMMENT -- Symington, who was given an advance look at the results of the poll, had this comment: "Naturally, I'm very pleased and flattered that my friends in Congress think so well of me."

He declined, as he had done previously to say that he was a candidate for the Presidential nomination.

REPUBLICAN PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES

Reports from the Des Moines meeting of the Republican National Committee Jan. 23 indicated Vice President Richard M. Nixon remained the favorite for the 1960 Presidential nomination. But growing interest in, if not, outright support for New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller (R) was also reported. (For report on Des Moines meeting see next page)

Jack Bell of the Associated Press said: "Nixon remains the strong favorite for next year's standard bearer but there is an awareness that Rockefeller may look more like a winner than the Vice President by the time the party convention meets."

The Gallup Poll Jan. 24 reported that Nixon had widened his lead over Rockefeller since November as the choice of Republican voters, holding almost a 2-1 advantage. Nixon and Rockefeller had equal strength among the independents, the poll said.

DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES

The Gallup Poll Jan. 25 showed Adlai E. Stevenson was the leading choice of Democratic voters for the 1960 Presidential nomination, as he had been since last June, with Sen. John F. Kennedy (D Mass.) a close second. Independent voters rated Kennedy over Stevenson.

Sens. Estes Kefauver (D Tenn.), Lyndon B. Johnson (D Texas), Stuart Symington (D Mo.) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D Minn.) and Govs. G. Mennen Williams (D Mich.) and Robert B. Meyner (D N.J.) were well back on both lists.

Two of the top professional Democratic politicians viewed with skepticism the possibility of another Stevenson candidacy. Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler Jan. 24 said, "on the basis of what Stevenson has said," he does not consider him a candidate. "No man can seriously be considered for the nomination in 1960," Butler said, "unless he can submit his name in one or two preferential primaries. Stevenson undoubtedly will refrain from entering preferential primaries on the basis of his being a two-time loser."

House Majority Leader John W. McCormack (D Mass.) Jan. 25 said Kennedy "today is the strongest of all the candidates" for the nomination, while Stevenson "would be the weakest candidate we could nominate."

NEW YORK DEMOCRATIC FIGHT

A campaign to end "boss rule" and remove Carmine G. DeSapio from control of the New York Democratic party was announced Jan. 22 by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, former Sen. Herbert H. Lehman (D N.Y.) and Thomas K. Finletter.

The liberal insurgents blamed DeSapio for providing the issue of "bossism" that was used so successfully in the 1958 Republican campaign.

The squabble stems from DeSapio's action in securing the 1958 Senate nomination for Frank S. Hogan, instead of Finletter, who was backed by the liberals. (1958 Weekly Report p. 1156)

It had its antecedents at the 1956 Democratic National Convention, when DeSapio backed New York Gov. Averell Harriman (D) while the three liberal leaders supported Adlai E. Stevenson.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner (D) of New York, who opposed DeSapio's choice of Hogan for the Senate, Jan. 23 said he would remain neutral in the new fight.

GOP MEETING DISCUSSES STRATEGY FOR 1960

For the Republican party workers gathered in blizzardy Des Moines Jan. 22-23 at the meeting of the Republican National Committee, Chairman Meade Alcorn had a message to match the weather:

"Despite the two great Presidential sweeps of 1952 and 1956," Alcorn declared bluntly, "the Republican party has not won what could properly be called a national party victory since 1946."

The "humiliating defeat" of 1958 occurred, he said, because the GOP did not add a single vote to its 1950 showing, despite an increase of 25 million in the population and an increase of 5.7 million in the Democratic tally.

"These are sobering facts," Alcorn said. "They point up unmistakably that unless we Republicans determine to undertake sweeping changes in our campaign techniques, our organizational operations and perhaps most of all in our party image, we must resign ourselves to a permanent minority role."

To avoid that fate, Alcorn presented a "program of action" hammered out in three months of top-level conferences and already approved by President Eisenhower and Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

It said the GOP must:

- Change "the false image of the Republican party as the party of big business and the vested interests." Specifically, said Alcorn, "we must get rid of the right-to-work tag" that rebounded against Republicans in California, Indiana, Ohio and other states in 1958.
  - Perform a complete overhaul of the party organization, to eliminate the deadwood.
  - Mount a "severe, prompt, sustained and fearless attack" on the mistakes of the Democrats.
  - Present a new set of carefully screened candidates.
- To meet these objectives, Alcorn recommended these specific steps:

1. Establishment of a "study committee," somewhat similar to the Democratic Advisory Council, to chart GOP policy goals between conventions. Its membership would include Governors, Members of Congress, party leaders and other influential citizens.
2. Recruitment of two million additional volunteer precinct workers for 1960, to match the manpower organized labor puts into the Democratic campaign.
3. Establishment at state and local levels of "Citizenship Service Committees" to screen potential Republican candidates.
4. Expansion of the regional training schools in political organization, launched in 1957, and establishment of touring political forums within each state.
5. Appointment of an "alternate," under 30 years old, for each state chairman and vice chairman, charged with recruiting young people into the GOP, and direction of Young Republican activity to the college and pre-voter group.
6. Expansion of the Senior Republican Clubs, whose formation was announced last fall, to tap "the enthusiasm and ability and experience" of older citizens.
7. Great expansion of the year-round activities of the Republican National Committee, including:

An increase in the number of campaign field workers;
A bigger public relations program, featuring a weekly television program and a party magazine;

And employment of a scientific polling service to run a continuing "depth study" of public opinion.

Alcorn conceded that these steps would require a big increase in the GOP budget, with the television program alone expected to cost about $1 million a year.

To raise the money, he proposed that the party line up sustaining contributors, who would agree to help finance these operations on a continuing monthly or quarterly basis.

After the shellacking they had taken in November 1958, few Republicans in Des Moines were inclined to argue with Alcorn's conclusion that the GOP needed a tonic. But there was a sharp public dispute over the nature of the Republican ailment before Alcorn's proposals were approved.

Back of the dispute lay the dislike felt by conservative Republicans, many of them backers of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft (R Ohio), for Alcorn's persistent effort to install "Modern Republicanism" as the doctrine of the party. But deeper than that was their resentment at what they regard as President Eisenhower's indifference to the GOP's need for patronage, prestige and policy direction.

The occasion for the dispute was the President's Jan. 22 message to the gathering, in which he urged "unremitting effort" by party workers. "I deeply regret," Mr. Eisenhower said, "that some people look upon our party as a kind of hibernating elephant who wakes with a mighty trumpet blast at election time and then rests calmly until the next campaign." (For full text, see p.147)

That was too much for some people. Chairman Richard M. Simpson (R Pa.) of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee said: "I call upon the White House to give us some of that unremitting political, planned effort on behalf of the Republican party...to give us a statement of principles for which we can stand. I'm sick and tired of going around the country and having good, honest Republicans coming up to me and saying, 'For what does the Republican party stand?'"

Simpson's speech was warmly applauded, as was a Jan. 23 message from Sen. Barry Goldwater (R Ariz.), newly elected chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee. (See p. 138, 143). Goldwater called on the GOP to "quit copying the New Deal," and, in a direct reference to the President, said: "The elephant will come out of hibernation when he knows in what direction he will point his trunk."

The outburst somewhat marred Alcorn's call for an end to party factionalism, "You don't cure this sick elephant by bleeding it," he remarked.

In Washington, meanwhile, there were distinct signs that the GOP organization and the White House were moving into better battle formation. President Eisenhower Jan. 26 announced he would meet with 40 Senate and House Republican leaders and with 19 freshman GOP Members in three meetings designed to whip up enthusiasm for the GOP legislative program.

House Republican leaders dined Jan. 29 with members of the Cabinet and White House staff. Meetings of the House GOP Policy Committee with the Republican National Committee staff were scheduled, and Senate Minority Leader Everett McKinley Dirksen (R Ill.) Jan. 24 announced a "truth squad" of Republican Senators would be organized to answer quickly all Democratic attacks in the Senate on Administration programs.

GOLDWATER — GOP SENATORIAL CAMPAIGN CHAIRMAN

In choosing Sen. Barry Goldwater (R Ariz.) chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, Senate Republicans placed their hopes for 1960 in the hands of a man who has never been beaten for public office.

They also selected as their spokesman a man whose views are so outspokenly conservative that they make some liberal Republicans shudder. (See p. 137, 143)

Goldwater's credentials as a successful campaigner and as a conservative spokesman are unimpeachable.

Background

Born Jan. 1, 1909, he is the grandson of an Arizona pioneer who came over the mountains to establish Goldwater's as the state's leading department store. After a career in the family store, Goldwater won election to the Phoenix city council in 1949.

In 1950 he managed the successful campaign to make Howard Pyle Arizona's first Republican Governor in 22 years. In that campaign, Goldwater, a World War II Air Corps pilot, flew Pyle from town to town in his own airplane -- a technique he used with great success in covering the vast state in his own later campaigns.

After gaining reelection to the city council in 1951, Goldwater was ready for his main effort, and in 1952 he toppled Senate Majority Leader Ernest W. McFarland (D) in a 6,725-vote upset. He was helped by President Eisenhower's 43,514-vote victory in the Presidential race.

In 1958 Goldwater completed his assault on what had been a Democratic stronghold by defeating McFarland again, this time by 35,563 votes, carrying a Republican unknown, Paul Fannin, into the governorship with him. The Democrats have better than a 2-1 registration edge.

His political success has been accomplished without a bit of deviation from the conservative principles Goldwater brought into politics from his business career, a fact that makes him skeptical of others' claims that the GOP must "remake its image" in order to win elections.

Goldwater defined his philosophy Jan. 15 in a letter on the Washington Post's description of him as an "eccentric." He said: "I am a conservative and a Republican and if that combination is eccentric, then my party has been eccentric through all the years of its history, up until very recent times. I believe in the Constitution and in the Declaration of Independence. I am totally against the centralization of power and the destruction of individual liberty.... I believe in the free enterprise system, balanced budgets, the soundness of the dollar and lower taxes, more economy in government and the right of a man to spend his own money and not have it spent for him by a bureaucratic government.... I recognized long ago the dangers of labor taking over the politics of this country and I said that was a danger to our Republic. I said further that I could see no difference between the corporate barons at the turn of the century buying elections for Republicans and the union barons of 1958 buying elections for Democrats."

Goldwater is best known for his views on organized labor and particularly for his long-continued feud with United Auto Workers President Walter P. Reuther. It was Goldwater's advocacy of right-to-work legislation and other measures to curb what he describes as "abuse" of union power that led Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R Ky.) to warn that Goldwater's election as campaign committee chairman "will give the Democrats a chance to label the Republicans as anti-labor."

Goldwater in Congress

Whatever the merits of that contention, CQ studies indicate Goldwater is in substantial agreement with the majority of Republican Senators on most issues. The CQ Party Unity and Party Opposition scores below measure the percent of the time he voted in agreement and in disagreement with the majority of Senate Republicans on roll-call votes where the GOP majority opposed the stand taken by the Democratic majority.

	Party Unity	Party Opposition
85th Congress	70%	7%
84th Congress	81	11
83rd Congress	68	14

Goldwater has, however, given less support to President Eisenhower's legislative stands than the average Republican Senator during the past six years. Here are his CQ Eisenhower Support and Opposition scores.

	Eisenhower Support	Eisenhower Opposition
85th Congress	57%	20%
84th Congress	66	23
83rd Congress	63	17

On April 8, 1957, he attacked the President's $72 billion budget as "a betrayal of the people's trust," caused, he said, by the "faulty premises of Modern Republicanism." Goldwater said it was "curious that the Administration's departures from its pledges...should occur during what I believe will be the rather brief tenure of this splinterized concept of Republican philosophy."

On major roll-call votes in 1958, Goldwater supported a move to strengthen the Kennedy-Ives labor bill by giving union members the right to sue officers for misuse of funds and a move to cut small business taxes. He opposed the farm price support freeze, increasing the Federal role in the unemployment compensation program, granting foreign aid to Communist satellites, giving billboard regulation bonuses to the states and cutting the oil and gas depletion allowance. Goldwater voted to table moves to consider new rules for the Senate in both 1959 and 1957. Also in 1957, he voted for the Civil Rights Act after supporting moves to limit its application to voting rights cases and to guarantee jury trials in all cases of criminal contempt. He voted for the Natural Gas Act in 1956 and against the Hells Canyon dam, but in 1955 supported the Upper Colorado reclamation project.

In 1954, he supported the Bricker Amendment to limit the President's treaty-making power and opposed the resolution censuring the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R Wis.).

On the two major foreign policy votes of 1958, Goldwater opposed passage of the Mutual Security Act and was paired against the Trade Agreements Extension Act.

HAWAII STATEHOOD

COMMITTEE -- House Interior and Insular Affairs. HELD HEARINGS -- On Hawaii statehood legislation (HR 50, 888, 954). (Weekly Report p. 110)

TESTIMONY -- Jan. 26 -- Secretary of Interior Fred A. Seaton called for early admission of Hawaii to the Union. Seaton said Hawaii was economically and politically qualified for statehood and, with approximately 635,000 residents, it surpassed six of the present states in population. He rejected arguments that Hawaii was susceptible to Communist control. He said "the people of Hawaii, time after time, have utterly rejected the Communist philosophy and every attempt of Communists to influence their government." The admission of Alaska as a state, Seaton said, "provides an excellent rebuttal" to the argument of noncontiguity. He said the United States needed "the participation of Hawaiians in our counsels, and their advice and experience in dealing with peoples of the Orient."

Rep. John W. McCormack (D Mass.), House majority leader, urged Hawaii statehood and said he would "program the bill after it is reported for as early consideration by the House as possible."

Jan. 27 -- Rear Admiral K. M. McManes, deputy chief of naval operations, acting as Defense Department spokesman, said all the bills under consideration "adequately safeguard the needs of the (military) services." He said, however, the Defense Department was opposed to a provision of HR 50, which would transfer to the state fee title to lands the military establishment currently used rent free. He said the department preferred a five-year period to renegotiate free-use permits with the right to retake the 114,000 acres involved. Hawaii Delegate John A. Burns (D) who introduced HR 50, indicated he would accept such an amendment.

The State Department, in a formal statement to the Committee, endorsed Hawaii statehood, saying it "would serve to support the American foreign policy...."

Jan. 28 -- Rep. W.R. Poage (D Texas) said many Members of Congress would oppose Hawaii statehood because they feared admission of Hawaii was being pushed solely to provide two more votes in the Senate for civil rights bills. Poage said he had voted for statehood in the past and might do so again if he were convinced the statehood bill was a sincere move to extend local self government to all citizens on U.S. soil.

AIRPORT CONSTRUCTION

COMMITTEE -- Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce, Aviation Subcommittee.

HELD HEARINGS -- On a bill (S 1) to provide $575 million in Federal grants to help communities build new airports and improve existing ones.

BACKGROUND -- The 1946 Federal Airport Act (PL 377) authorized the Federal Government to pay half the cost of building public airports. In 1955, Congress amended (PL 211) the act to provide for definite amounts of $63 million a year for the program instead of relying on annual appropriations. The aid was scheduled to terminate June 30, 1959. In 1958, President Eisenhower vetoed a bill similar to S 1. (Weekly Report p. 64)

TESTIMONY -- Jan. 22 -- Subcommittee Chairman A.S. Mike Monroney (D Okla.), author of S 1, said additional Federal aid was needed to maintain aviation "as a vital link" in the Nation's transportation system. S 1 would provide an emergency fund of $75 million to help big airports prepare for the jet age and $100 million a year in matching grants for fiscal 1960 through 1964.

Administrator Elwood R. Quesada of the Federal Aviation Agency said S 1 was "outmoded, too high in cost and poorly designed to fulfill the proper area of Federal responsibility in meeting airport development needs in a timely and effective fashion." He supported the Administration bill (S 674) which would authorize $65 million for fiscal 1960; $55 million for fiscal 1961; $45 million for fiscal 1962; and $35 million for fiscal 1963 in dollar-for-dollar matching funds. The $200 million in Federal aid under S 674 would be confined to use for runways, aprons and tower facilities -- not terminal facilities.

Spokesmen for the Air Transport Assn., American Municipal Assn., AFL-CIO, National Aviation Trades Assn. and U.S. Conference of Mayors supported S 1.

Jan. 23 -- J. D. Durand, secretary of the Air Transport Assn., said in opposing the Administration's "orderly withdrawal" bill that "this certainly is not the time for the Federal Government to withdraw from the airport program."

Cyril C. Thompson of the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Assn. suggested that S 1 be amended to reserve 25 percent of the grants for cities that had not received Federal airport aid to date.

Jan. 26 -- George Dement, vice president of the Airport Operators Council, said cities could not pay airport costs by themselves and needed the type of Federal aid offered in S 1.

RELATED DEVELOPMENTS -- Jan. 24 -- Sen. Thruston B. Morton (R Ky.) said the Democrats had the votes to pass S 1, but expressed hope they would make it more palatable to the White House by declaring Federal money could not be spent for airport terminals.

Committee Assignments

House Republican leaders Jan. 27 named Republican Reps. Alvin E. O'Konski (Wis.), Wint Smith (Kan.), Steven B. Derounian (N.Y.) and Jessica McC. Weis (N.Y.) to fill the four Republican vacancies on the District of Columbia Committee.

In a three-way Senate shift Jan. 27, Sen. Thomas E. Martin (R Iowa) resigned from Judiciary and was appointed to Aeronautical and Space Sciences and Interior and Insular Affairs; Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R N.Y.) resigned from Aeronautical and Space Sciences and Rules and Administration and was appointed to Banking and Currency; and Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R N.Y.) resigned from Banking and Currency and Interior and Insular Affairs and was appointed to Judiciary and Rules and Administration.

DRAFT EXTENSION

COMMITTEE -- House Armed Services.

OPENED HEARINGS -- On extension of Selective Service induction authority, expiring June 30, 1959.

TESTIMONY -- Jan. 26 -- Asst. Secretary of Defense Charles C. Finucane supported the Administration's request for a four-year extension of the draft, saying that although only the Army used it, the authority was needed to keep up voluntary enlistments in all of the services. Without the draft, he said, the armed services would fall 700,000 short of the 2.5 million men needed.

Spokesmen for the Chamber of Commerce of the U.S. urged no more than a two-year extension, together with an amendment reducing the maximum age for induction from 26 to 20 or 21. But Committee Chairman Carl Vinson (D Ga.) said he thought "we have no choice" but to approve the four-year extension.

Jan. 27 -- Testifying in support of the Administration's bill (HR 2260) were Army Chief of Staff Maxwell D. Taylor; Admiral James S. Russell, Vice Chief of Naval Operations; Gen. Randolph McC. Pate, Marine Corps Commandant; and Gen. Curtis LeMay, Air Force Vice Chief of Staff. All acknowledged that their services would like to have more manpower; all, however, refused to criticize the cutbacks ordered by the Administration, or to affirm the charge by Rep. F. Edward Hebert (D La.) that they were testifying under a "gag" imposed by the Secretary of Defense.

Jan. 28 -- Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service Director, said that some form of "compulsion" was needed to build up the Nation's civil defense capabilities, and suggested that men excused from the draft for physical or mental reasons, "80 percent of whom are making a living," could be channelled into civil defense work. Rep. Leonard G. Wolf (D Iowa) proposed a two-year extension. Rep. William H. Meyer (D Vt.) said continuance of the draft would result in "too much militarism."

DEFENSE PROGRAM

COMMITTEE -- Senate Armed Services.

CONCLUDED HEARINGS -- On the status of the defense program (Weekly Report p. 111).

TESTIMONY -- Jan. 26 -- Secretary of the Navy Thomas S. Gates Jr. and Admiral Arleigh A. Burke, Chief of Naval Operations, testified in closed session. Burke said the Navy needed 43 new ships a year, instead of the 20 actually built, to replace 864 World War II ships that were wearing out. After hearing Burke, Chairman Richard B. Russell (D Ga.) said he was "apprehensive" about the Navy's ability to carry out its mission under the Administration's budget.

Gen. Randolph McC. Pate, commandant of the Marine Corps, said the decision to cut the Marines' manpower from 200,000 to 175,000 had forced him to deactivate two combat landing teams in each of the three Marine divisions and to delete six air squadrons.

Jan. 27 -- Air Force Secretary James H. Douglas and Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force Chief of Staff, were the witnesses. In contrast to Army and Navy spokesmen, who had argued for balanced forces to cope with the threat of "small wars," Douglas and White emphasized the threat of total war and the need for "a capability, in being, of destroying a significant part of the Soviet strategic nuclear delivery forces." White said Air Force war plans were based on which of 20,000 targets studied

"must be destroyed." He warned against a "growing and dangerous" tendency to "alter our strategic concept to have the capability to destroy only the cities and population of the enemy."

Jan. 28 -- Sen. Russell, following conclusion of the hearings, said "there is no question that Soviet Russia is ahead of us in the missile field." He added, however, that the Nation's nuclear bombing capacity gave it "the greatest destructive force in the world today." These two points bore on a running public controversy between Sen. Stuart Symington (D Mo.) and Defense Secretary Neil McElroy.

McElroy, in a Jan. 22 press conference, said there was "no positive evidence" that the Soviets would have an operational intercontinental ballistic missile before the U.S., and that estimates that the Soviets would have 300 ICBM's by the end of 1960 were "exaggerated." Symington told the Senate Jan. 23 that the Soviets would have four times as many ICBM's as the U.S. by 1961. He said that most of the planes in the Strategic Air Command "are obsolescent or obsolete" and that "the coming year may afford us our last chance to initiate any real effort to catch up with the Russians."

RELATED DEVELOPMENT -- Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev Jan. 27 said "the Soviet Union has started the serial production of intercontinental ballistic missiles." Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Jan. 28 said the Soviet announcement "doesn't mean a thing."

OMNIBUS HOUSING

COMMITTEE -- Senate Banking and Currency.

BEGAN HEARINGS -- On housing legislation.

TESTIMONY -- Jan. 22 -- Administrator Norman P. Mason of the Housing and Home Finance Agency urged passage of these Administration proposals: (1) S 65, which would authorize the Federal Housing Administration to insure another $6 billion in home mortgages in the remainder of fiscal 1959, permit the Treasury to make another $200 million in college housing loans in fiscal 1959 and permit the Urban Renewal Administration to make an additional $100 million in capital grants for slum clearance projects in fiscal 1959; (2) S 612, which would liberalize down payments on FHA housing, gradually reduce the Federal contribution to slum clearance projects from two-thirds to one-half and provide $1.35 billion over six years to continue the urban renewal program.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D Pa.), sponsor of a bill (S 193) to give cities $600 million a year for 10 years for urban renewal, said the Administration's recommendations would result in a "breakdown" in the urban renewal program.

Jan. 23 -- Spokesmen for the AFL-CIO and Americans for Democratic Action opposed the Administration bill, endorsed S 193.

Jan. 26 -- Spokesmen for the American Municipal Assn. and U.S. Conference of Mayors opposed Administration urban renewal recommendations as inadequate. A spokesman for the American Bankers Assn. endorsed the Administration's proposed 50-50 split.

Spokesmen for the Assn. of American Colleges, Assn. for Higher Education of the National Education Assn., American Council on Education and American Assn. of Land-Grant Colleges and State Universities asked for a $500 million program of low-interest loans for college housing for fiscal 1959 and 1960 and a new $250 million loan program for fiscal 1960 to build academic facilities. Several college spokesmen urged in addition amendment of the slum clearance laws so that universities could clear slum areas even if less than 51 percent of the area was residential.

Jan. 27 -- C. Beverly Briley of the National Assn. of County Officials said housing laws should be amended so that counties could qualify for planning grants in mapping urban renewal projects.

Jan. 28 -- Carl T. Mitnick, president of the National Assn. of Home Builders, said the 4-3/4 percent interest rate on GI mortgages was unrealistic, that it had made the program "practically dead." Robert A. Holloway, of the National Assn. of Real Estate Boards, said the maximum mortgage amount for FHA sales housing should be raised from $20,000 to $30,000 for one-family houses.

ADMINISTERED PRICES

COMMITTEE -- Senate Judiciary, Antitrust and Monopoly Subcommittee.

RESUMED HEARINGS -- On "administered price inflation." (1958 Almanac p. 704)

TESTIMONY -- Jan. 23 -- Subcommittee Chairman Estes Kefauver (D Tenn.) denied charges by Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen (R Ill.) that in 1958 the Subcommittee was "out on a political jaunt." Kefauver called the group's work "something of a brake on inflation."

Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, urged Congress to revise the antitrust laws, making them apply to labor unions and agricultural cooperatives now exempt. He said separate laws might be needed to protect the public interest against such concentrations of economic power as the Teamsters Union and General Motors.

Dr. Ben W. Lewis of Oberlin College discounted the effectiveness of antitrust laws in coping with economic concentration. He predicted, in the years ahead, "a great increase in conscious, collective, governmental controls and of governmental enterprise," reflecting public concern "over the private possession of economic power so vast that even its possessors are frightened."

Jan. 24 -- Dr. Walter S. Adams of Michigan State University endorsed trust-busting as a means of spurring efficiency and technological progress, as well as retarding inflation. He proposed a new law, patterned on the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, to deal with excessive concentration of power.

Dr. Gardiner C. Means, who originated the concept of administered prices, argued that from 1953 to 1958 price increases in steel, electrical machinery and other concentrated industries were largely offset by price decreases for farm products, textiles and other competitive areas, resulting in effect in a transfer of income from competitive to administered price industries.

Jan. 26 -- Dr. Corwin Edwards of the University of Chicago recommended strengthening the antitrust laws and called for a continuing survey of the levels of concentration in various industries, similar to that prepared by the Subcommittee in 1957.

LABOR INVESTIGATION

COMMITTEE -- Senate Select Committee on Improper Activities in the Labor or Management Field.

RESUMED HEARINGS -- On labor racketeering. (Weekly Report p. 111)

TESTIMONY -- Jan. 27 -- William Rumminger, Detroit trucking firm salesman, said he had paid $19,711

in commissions to obtain business to Rolland McMaster, business agent for a Detroit local of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. The commissions, he said, were half his net profit on trucking business he obtained for the firm. Joseph Maher, a committee investigator, said McMaster had had financial dealings with several other Detroit trucking companies. McMaster invoked the Fifth Amendment.

In connection with its investigation of union welfare-pension plan insurance, the Committee heard testimony from Seymour Goodman, New York State insurance department examiner, who said Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa had been responsible for a total of $1.3 million in overcharges to three labor union groups. Goodman testified that Allen Dorfman, Chicago insurance agent, made the overcharges on the welfare-pension insurance plans of the Central Conference of Teamsters, the Michigan Conference of Teamsters and Chicago Local 1031 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL-CIO).

Staff Investigator Martin Uhlmann said the amount cited by Goodman did not include a $600,000 payment by the three unions to Dr. Leo Perlman, president of the Union Casualty Co. of New York, holder of the original insurance contracts. Uhlmann said Perlman had set up a subsidiary firm which charged the union a fee for servicing its insurance policies. Dorfman invoked the Fifth Amendment.

Jan. 28 -- Uhlmann produced copies of letters and telegrams he said passed between Hoffa and Perlman to negotiate reduced benefits and raise premiums for members of the Michigan Conference of Teamsters. Uhlmann said this was a violation of the Labor-Management Relations Act of 1947 because Hoffa was not a trustee.

EURATOM PROGRAM

COMMITTEE -- Joint Atomic Energy, Agreements for Cooperation Subcommittee.

HELD HEARINGS -- On a proposed agreement between the United States and the European Atomic Energy Community (Euratom) for construction abroad of six atomic power plants. (1958 Almanac p. 255)

TESTIMONY -- Jan. 21 -- Atomic Energy Commissioner John Floberg said four of the six plants should be completed by Dec. 31, 1963, the other two probably by the end of 1965. He said he considered the 45-month construction period tight but sufficient, and the AEC was in accord with the Joint Committee's request that the widest number of types of reactors be chosen, to gain the greatest possible experience in atomic energy development. Asked if the schedule would not favor big companies already knowledgeable in the field, Floberg said the AEC was aware of this problem and would seek to make sure all bidders got a fair chance. He said the deadline for utilities' proposals was Sept. 1, with contracts probably to be let April 1, 1960.

Jan. 22 -- C. Douglas Dillon, Under Secretary of State for Economic Affairs, said the six member governments of Euratom (Belgium, France, West Germany, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands) Jan. 1 agreed to eliminate all tariffs on trade in nuclear products among themselves, but at the same time imposed a 10 percent tariff on all imported nuclear products, with collection suspended until January 1962. Dillon said the tariff was so low it would not eliminate U.S. concerns from the market, and would be "repaid with interest." He said the tariff's purpose was to promote nuclear reactor development as quickly and cheaply as possible.

LABOR UNION REFORMS

President Eisenhower Jan. 28 sent his 1959 labor program to Congress amid indications Republican leaders were prepared for floor fights in support of three key items in the program. (For text of message see p. 146)

Most of the President's 20 recommendations dealt with labor corruption and labor-management collusion and were similar to provisions in Sen. John F. Kennedy's (D Mass.) anti-corruption bill (S 505), which was introduced Jan. 20, reportedly with the support of the Senate Democratic leadership. However, the President's labor program also called for three Taft-Hartley Act changes not included in the Kennedy bill and believed to be opposed by Democratic leaders: sharpening of existing prohibitions against secondary boycotts; banning of certain types of recognition picketing; and permitting the states to take jurisdiction over some labor disputes ("no man's land" cases), currently reserved exclusively for action by the National Labor Relations Board. Kennedy Jan. 20 said Taft-Hartley Act changes should be considered separately from anti-corruption proposals. (Weekly Report p. 121)

Republican Congressional leaders Jan. 27, after a conference with the President, criticized the Kennedy bill. House Minority Leader Charles A. Halleck (R Ind.) said the President had called S 505 a half-way measure. Halleck said the President had characterized S 505 as "a little better than nothing." He said the President's program was intended to protect "the public as well as labor's rank and file" from "corruption and racketeering by some labor leaders" that constituted "a stench in the nostrils of this country."

Both the President's proposals and the Kennedy bill would require unions to make detailed annual reports to the Government on their handling of union funds and organizational procedures; require employers to report on payments to "middlemen;" bar bribes and other improper payments between union and management; and require Democratic union elections and trusteeship arrangements between international and local unions. In addition, both would permit certification of building trades unions without representation elections and give strikers replaced during a strike the right to vote in a representation election. However, the President's program, in addition to provisions on "no man's land" cases, recognition picketing and secondary boycotts, would require employers wishing to use NLRB facilities to sign non-Communist affidavits and require the membership of the NLRB to be bipartisan, with no more than three members of the same party. None of these proposals was included in the Kennedy bill. Among major proposals in the latter bill not recommended by the President was a new definition of "foreman" that would permit many foremen to belong to unions.

Kennedy Jan. 28, after Sen. Barry Goldwater (R Ariz.) had introduced a bill (S 748) containing the President's program, said S 505 and the Goldwater bill were similar on many provisions and he hoped a compromise could be reached. However, he said the Goldwater bill sought to "load down an anti-racketeering measure with vast and controversial revisions in the Taft-Hartley Act."

CIVIL RIGHTS LEGISLATION

Two major proposals affecting civil rights and school segregation were introduced in Congress last week. Sen. Herman E. Talmadge (D Ga.), backed by seven other Southern Democrats, Jan. 27 proposed a constitutional amendment (S J Res 32) to reserve exclusive control of the public schools to the states.

Talmadge said his proposal would leave each state "free to determine...in accordance with local conditions and procedures and prevailing attitudes how and when its schools would comply with the Supreme Court's school decision."

Chairman Emanuel Celler (D N.Y.) of the House Judiciary Committee Jan. 22 introduced a bill (HR 3147) with strong provisions for speeding school desegregation.

Celler's bill would authorize the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to advise localities on school integration procedures; to make grants of up to $40 million a year to help them meet additional costs that stem from school integration; and to prepare plans for integrating schools when the localities themselves do not do so promptly. It would authorize the Attorney General to file civil suits on behalf of the United States to compel the local school boards to put the integration plans into effect.

HR 3147 also would give the Attorney General broad power to seek injunctions against a wide variety of civil rights violations.

Meantime, informal debate continued on Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson's (D Texas) civil rights bill (S 499). (Weekly Report p. 120)

Majority Whip Mike Mansfield (D Mont.) Jan. 23 called the bill "a constructive advance" that separates "the possible from the presumptuous" and predicted the Senate would have an opportunity to act on it "in the near future."

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R N.Y.) Jan. 25 criticized the two leading features of the bill. He said the grant of authority to the Justice Department to subpoena voting registration records was "a snare and a delusion," because the Department would first have to apply to the state Governor for action and, if he were uncooperative, to a three-judge Federal court. The procedure "is designed to obstruct the getting of an order for inspection of records, rather than to facilitate it," Keating said.

Johnson's proposal for a Federal conciliation service to help mediate segregation disputes was attacked by Keating as "conciliating the question of whether the law shall be complied with or not."

Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Arthur S. Flemming Jan. 26 announced he was working on legislation to provide for the education of children of military personnel who live off-base in localities whose schools are closed by segregation conflicts.

The general Administration civil rights package was still not ready, but Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty Jan. 22 denied reports of a "severe split" in the Cabinet over what it should contain.

CIVIL RIGHTS COMMISSION

Federal District Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. Jan. 26 dismissed a contempt of court charge against Alabama Circuit Judge George C. Wallace for refusal to turn voting registration records of two counties over to the Federal Civil Rights Commission.

Johnson ruled that Wallace actually complied with the court order to make the records available even though he "attempted to give the impression he was defying" the order. Wallace turned the records of Barbour and Bullock Counties over to grand juries, which, in turn, made them available to the Commission investigators. (Weekly Report p. 81)

Wallace Jan. 23 admitted to Johnson that he disobeyed the court order, but Johnson refused to take the "confession" at face value.

Johnson said he would not be "swayed by politically generated whirlwinds." Wallace was runner-up in the 1958 Alabama Democratic gubernatorial primary and is expected to seek high office again. (1958 Weekly Report p. 512, 617, 739)

The Civil Rights Commission lost one of its members when J. Ernest Wilkins, 64, Chicago Negro attorney and former Assistant Secretary of Labor, died Jan. 19.

GOLDWATER ELECTED

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R Ariz.) Jan. 21 was chosen to head the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee. The decision marked the end of a backstage battle by liberal Republicans to deny the post to Goldwater, an avowed conservative.

The Republican conference rejected, 18-9, a liberal-backed move to change the rules to permit the entire conference to select the chairman of the campaign committee. The conference chairman, Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R Mass.), then nominated Goldwater and the choice was ratified unanimously. (For Goldwater profile, see p. 138)

AREA DEVELOPMENT

The Douglas-Payne bill to aid depressed areas, passed in 1958 but vetoed by President Eisenhower, was reintroduced Jan. 27, in substantially similar form, as S 722 by Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D Ill.) and 38 co-sponsors, including five Republicans. A companion bill (HR 3466) was introduced the same day in the House by Rep. Daniel J. Flood (D Pa.). (1958 Almanac p. 147)

Like the Douglas-Payne bill, S 722 would authorize loans totaling $300 million and grants of $75 million to industrial areas suffering from chronic unemployment and to depressed rural areas. Another $4.5 million would be available for technical aid to redevelopment areas. S 722 was changed in these respects: the 300-county limitation on participating rural areas was removed; the maximum period for loans from the two $100-million revolving funds for private projects in industrial and rural areas was reduced from 40 to 30 years; the interest rate on loans from these two funds was increased from one-quarter to one-half of 1 percent above the Treasury's borrowing cost; and the authorization for $75 million in grants for public facilities was limited to one year as opposed to an indefinite period.

The change from 40 to 30 years in the maximum loan period was cited by Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D Pa.) as one of three "concessions" made to meet the President's objections to the Douglas-Payne bill in 1958. The other changes, he said, revised administration of grants and authorized the proposed Area Redevelopment Administration to borrow its loan funds from the Treasury, "thus meeting the President's argument that last year's bill contained no funds." Authority to borrow was provided in the Douglas-Payne bill as it passed the Senate in 1958; the House, however, knocked this out, insisting that the funds be provided by appropriations.

In introducing S 722, Douglas said: "We believe that conditions are such that the President will not veto the bill at this time." In his budget message and Economic Report, the President called for an area development program of about $55 million, limited to loans and technical assistance. The Senate Banking and Currency Committee is expected to take up the subject after disposing of housing legislation.

PRICE COMMITTEE

President Eisenhower Jan. 23 established, by executive order, a Committee on Government Activities Affecting Prices and Costs, and designated as its chairman Dr. Raymond J. Saulnier, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers. Other members were to include representatives of the Departments of Defense, Interior, Agriculture, Commerce, the Post Office Department, Bureau of the Budget, General Services Administration, Atomic Energy Commission, Federal Aviation Agency, and Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization.

In announcing the action, the President said:

"Although the Government has many programs that affect prices and costs -- including, of course, procurement -- there is now no central mechanism for following their current operations to see whether they are being conducted, insofar as possible, in line with the need for reasonable stability of prices and costs. This newly established Committee will provide such a mechanism.

"Each of the programs covered by this order operates under its own law and regulations, and each was set up for a specific purpose. What is needed today is a fresh look at how they are operating in the light of modern-day economic problems. We need to make sure that we are not contributing to the Nation's inflationary problems by the way in which we run our own Government business."

Establishment of the Committee was one of several steps, outlined in the President's Economic Report, foreshadowing an effort to win public support for the Administration's view that inflation is the chief economic problem facing the country. (Weekly Report p. 96)

CONSUMER PRICES

The Bureau of Labor Statistics Jan. 23 reported a .2 percent drop in living costs during December 1958 -- the first monthly decline since August. The Bureau said the Consumer Price Index decline was due primarily to a seasonal dip in food prices, and that it restored the index to the June 1958 level of 123.7 percent of the 1947-49 average. The index still was 1.7 percent higher than a year earlier, the Bureau said.

Earnings of factory workers were reported to have reached an all-time high, averaging $79.60 per week in spendable income. (Weekly Report p. 28)

REP. CHRISTOPHER DIES

Rep. George H. Christopher (D), 71, who had represented Missouri's Fourth District in the House since 1955, died Jan. 23 of a heart ailment.

Christopher was the eighth-ranking Democrat on the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee and the fifth-ranking Democrat on the Veterans' Affairs Committee.

His death was the first of the 86th Congress and left the House membership at 282 Democrats and 153 Republicans.

CODE OF ETHICS

Legislation to establish an "enforceable" code of ethics for the Government's Executive and Legislative Branches was introduced Jan. 23 by New York Republican Sens. Jacob K. Javits and Kenneth B. Keating (S 658, 671, S J Res 30, S Res 46, 47). Javits said there was "urgent" need for "positive, comprehensive legislation," because the Federal Code of Ethics adopted by Congress in 1958 (H Con Res 175) did not supply ample guidance or enforcement machinery. (1958 Almanac p. 700)

The new proposals would: establish a code of ethics, with violators punishable by discharge and/or civil action by the Attorney General; require regulatory agencies to make part of the public record all communications from Members of Congress; establish a bipartisan commission to study and develop additional legislation; give the Senate Rules and Administration Committee jurisdiction over alleged violations by Senators; and permit Senators to abstain from voting on matters involving a personal interest without first securing Senate approval.

In the House, Rep. Emanuel Celler (D N.Y.) Jan. 20 introduced two bills (HR 2156, 2157) for clarification of conflict-of-interest laws and enactment of an ethics code for the Executive Branch.

TURBINE CONTRACT

Rep. Hale Boggs (D La.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Foreign Trade Policy Subcommittee, Jan. 27 criticized the Administration for paying only "lip service" to a liberal foreign trade policy. Boggs referred to a Jan. 19 announcement by the Army Corps of Engineers that a contract for two electrical turbines would be awarded to a Philadelphia firm, although an English firm had been low bidder. For national security reasons, the announcement said, the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization had decided to award the contract to a domestic firm.

Under the "Buy American" Act, defense contracts must be awarded to a foreign firm when its bid is more than 6 percent below the lowest domestic bid, except when the domestic producer is in an area of serious unemployment. In that case, a domestic bid up to 12 percent higher than a foreign bid may be accepted. The English bid was 17 percent lower than that of the Philadelphia firm, and Boggs said that "the only excuse (for the award) that could be given under the terms of President Eisenhower's own executive order on the Buy American Act was the excuse of national security."

Boggs said that Sen. Hugh Scott (R Pa.), during his 1958 campaign for the Senate, had said the White House had told him the contract would go to the local industry. Boggs charged that the contract had been made "on political grounds." Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, at a Jan. 27 news conference, denied that politics was involved in the award. He said it was "an honest decision which can be and was justified on its own merits."

Classroom Shortage

The chart on the following page gives U.S. Office of Education figures on classroom shortages and construction plans in every state. The figures indicate:

- Alabama would have made the over-all classroom shortage look worse in 1958-59 than previous school year if it had stuck by its 1957-58 estimate of classrooms it needed to handle excess enrollment. Then Alabama said it needed 9,366 to handle excess. It dropped that figure to 1,899 for 1958-59 school year. However, Alabama also increased its estimate of classrooms needed to replace old ones between the two school years by as great a margin. Education Office officials say differences were occasioned by refiguring.

- 27 states estimated they reduced their classroom shortage between the 1957-58 and 1958-59 school years: Arizona, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin.

- 4 states are in doubt because they did not submit adequate figures: Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania.

- 16 states and the District of Columbia estimated an increase in their classroom shortage between the 1957-58 and 1958-59 school years: Alabama, Colorado, Florida, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Mississippi, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, New York, Texas, Utah, West Virginia, Wyoming.

- 1 state showed no change between the 1957-58 and 1958-59 school years: New Jersey.

BUILDING PLANS

- 22 states and the District of Columbia plan to build more classrooms in the 1958-59 school year than they had planned to build in the 1957-58 school year: Alabama, Arizona, California, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Dakota, Ohio, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Wisconsin.

- 23 states plan to build fewer classrooms in the 1958-59 school year than they planned for the previous year: Arkansas, Connecticut, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Texas, Washington, West Virginia, Wyoming.

- 2 states plan to build the same number: Missouri and Iowa.

- 1 is in doubt because it did not submit adequate figures: Kansas.

- Classroom building has not cut into the backlog of need appreciably. To wipe out this backlog, about 140,000 classrooms would have to be built. At $40,000 a classroom, this would cost $5.6 billion.

SHORTAGE OF PUBLIC CLASSROOMS STATE BY STATE OVER THREE YEARS

This chart shows how many classrooms states think they need to house excess enrollment and replace old classrooms. "Classrooms" include laboratories and shops as well as regular classrooms, but not auditoriums, gymnasiums, lunchrooms, libraries, study halls and multi-purpose rooms. The "to be built" heading means classrooms the states expect to finish during the same school year in which needs are estimated. A question mark means state figures were not supplied. Alaska, which did not become a state until 1959, is listed under "outlying regions" so as not to distort national year to year comparisons.

PRESIDENT CALLS FOR ENACTMENT OF 20-POINT LABOR PROGRAM

Following is the text of President Eisenhower's Jan. 28 message to Congress outlining his requests for labor legislation:

TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES:

In the State of the Union message on January ninth, I reported again to the Congress on the need for enactment of effective Federal legislation designed:

To safeguard workers' funds in union treasuries against misuse of any kind whatsoever.

To protect the rights and freedoms of individual union members, including the basic right to free and secret election of officers.

To advance true and responsible collective bargaining. To protect the public and innocent third parties from unfair and coercive practices such as boycotting and blackmail picketing.

There is submitted herewith for the consideration of the Congress a 20-point program which will eliminate abuses demonstrated by the hearings of the McClellan Committee, protect the public interest and insure the rights and economic freedoms of millions of American workers.

Complete and effective labor-management legislation, not a piecemeal program, is essential to assure the American public that true, responsible collective bargaining can be carried on with full protection to the rights and freedoms of workers and with adequate guarantees of the public interest. These recommendations when adopted, should do much to eliminate those abuses and improper practices which, I am firmly convinced, the American public expects and believes will be corrected through legislative action. Equally important, they will do so without imposing arbitrary restrictions or punitive measures on the legitimate activities of honest labor and management officials.

LEGISLATIVE PROPOSALS

I recommend legislation --

1. To require all unions to file detailed annual reports with the Department of Labor and furnish information to their members with respect to their financial operations. These reports would be open to the public, including union members.

2. To require all unions to file with the Department of Labor, as public information, copies of their constitutions and bylaws and information as to their organization and procedures, which would be required to include provisions, which are observed, meeting minimum standards for periodic secret ballot elections of officers, for the removal of officers and for the imposition of supervisory control over the affairs of subordinate bodies.

3. To require all unions to keep proper records on the matters required to be reported, open to examination by Government representatives and to permit union members, subject to reasonable conditions and upon request, to see and examine these records.

4. To require unions, union officers and agents and employers to report and keep proper records with respect to any payments, transactions or investments which create conflicts of interests or have as their objective the interference with the statutory rights of individual union members and employees.

5. To require that union officers hold and administer union funds and property solely for the benefit of the union members and for furthering the purpose of the union and to make this duty enforceable in any court in a suit for an accounting by the union or by members.

6. To require that unions observe minimum standards for the conduct of the elections of officers, including in addition to periodic elections, the right of members to vote in secret without restraint or coercion and upon due notice, uniform opportunity for all members to be candidates, procedures to ensure an accurate tabulation of votes, a ban upon the use of union or employer funds to promote candidacies for union office and requiring constitutions and bylaws to contain detailed statements of election procedures and compliance with such procedures.

7. To require unions to observe minimum standards and to conform to the appropriate provisions of their constitution and bylaws in exercising supervisory control over the affairs of subordinate bodies; such control should be limited in purpose to correcting corruption, or the disregard of democratic procedures or other practices detrimental to the rights of the members in the subordinate body, and assuring the performance of duties as a bargaining representative.

8. To place the administration of this legislation in the Secretary of Labor and to provide him with appropriate and adequate authority to issue regulations, investigate, subpoena witnesses and records, bring court action to compel compliance and to correct violations and institute administrative procedures leading to decisions and orders, which would be subject to judicial review, necessary to effectuate the purposes of the legislation.

9. To prescribe criminal penalties for willful violations of the act, for concealment or destruction of records required to be kept, for bribery between employers and employee representatives, for improper payments by employers or their representatives to employees or employee representatives, for embezzlement of union funds and for false entries or destruction of union books and records.

10. To preserve for union members any present remedies under state or Federal laws, in addition to those provided under this legislation.

11. To amend the secondary boycott provisions of the National Labor Relations Act so as to cover the direct coercion of employers to cease or agree to cease doing business with other persons; union pressures directed against secondary employers not otherwise subject to the act; and inducements of individual employees to refuse to perform services with the object of forcing their employers to stop doing business with others; and to make clear that secondary activity is permitted against an employer performing "farmed-out struck work" and, under certain circumstances, against secondary employers engaged in work at a common construction site with the primary employer.

BARGAINING REPRESENTATIVES

12. To make it illegal for a union, by picketing, to coerce an employer to recognize it as the bargaining representative of his employees or his employees to accept or designate it as their representative where the employer has recognized in accordance with law another labor organization, or where a representation election has been conducted within the last preceding 12 months, or where it cannot be demonstrated that there is a sufficient showing of interest on the part of the employees in being represented by the picketing union or where the picketing has continued for a reasonable period of time without the desires of the employees being determined by a representation election; and to provide speedy and effective enforcement measures.

13. To authorize the National Labor Relations Board to decline to take cases where the effect on commerce is relatively insubstantial and to permit the state courts and agencies to act with respect to these cases.

14. To eliminate the statutory prohibition which presently bars certain strikers from voting in representation elections, although their replacements are permitted to vote, and instead to leave the voting eligibility of strikers, as well as all others, to the administrative discretion of the National Labor Relations Board.

15. To authorize the board, under carefully considered specific conditions, to certify building and construction trades unions as bargaining representatives without an election.

16. In order to speed up the orderly processes of election procedures, to permit the board under proper safeguards to conduct representation elections without holding a prior hearing where no substantial objection to an election is made.

17. To equalize the onus of the non-Communist affidavit by extending it to employers, as well as unions, wishing to use the processes of the act.

18. To make clear that parties to a valid collective bargaining agreement need not negotiate during the life of the agreement unless they have provided for, or agree to, the reopening of the agreement.

19. To authorize the designation by the President of an acting general counsel of the board when vacancies occur in that office.

20. To require that the board be bipartisan in composition by providing that not more than three members of the board may be of the same political party.

I urge that Congress give prompt and favorable consideration to this program. Its enactment, in my opinion, would contribute greatly to the protection of the public interest and the basic rights of individual working men and women.

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

THE WHITE HOUSE,
January 28, 1959.

MESSAGE TO GOP MEETING

Following is the text of President Eisenhower's Jan. 22 message to GOP National Chairman Meade Alcorn at the Republican National Committee meeting in Des Moines, Iowa (see p. 137):

This meeting of our party's National Committee underlines the continuous nature of our political system. I deeply regret that some people look upon our party as a kind of hibernating elephant who wakes with a mighty trumpet blast at election time and then rests calmly until the next campaign. Political activity must be a matter of unremitting effort. It must go on 365 days a year if we are to maintain the vitality that has made our nation great. Only 658 days remain until the next national election. We must make each of them count. Every day we lose is one we can never get back.

Immediately we must give the millions of Americans who look to the Republican party for progressive leadership a clear understanding of our long-range objectives. The publicizing of such party guide lines is sorely needed to make meaningful the value of our political system to the voter and the party worker. Only in this way can we lift creative Republicanism to new heights of national achievement.

Your meeting this week should be the first step in a continuous work program of the Republican party that will never cease. This demands constant attention to organization, to cooperation at all levels, to assuring that candidates are capable, vigorous, personable and dedicated; that finances are secured on a continuing and satisfactory basis; and that every Republican and every friend of Republicanism keeps everlastingly at the job of recruiting for the party.

I look forward to your personal report on the results of this important session and send you, the Republican National Committee, and its staff, my warmest personal regard.

OTHER PUBLIC STATEMENTS

Other recent public statements by President Eisenhower:

Jan. 20 -- Statement welcoming President Arturo Frondizi of Argentina upon the latter's arrival in Washington.

Jan. 21 -- Executive order extending through 1959 the authority of the Senate Select Committee on Improper Activities in the Labor or Management Field to inspect certain tax returns.

Jan. 21 -- Letter accepting the resignation of Harlow H. Curtis as chairman of the Committee for Traffic Safety.

Jan. 22 -- Letter accepting the resignation of Howard Pyle as deputy assistant to the President for intergovernmental relations.

Jan. 23 -- Proclamation designating Jan. 25-Jan. 31, 1959 as National Junior Achievement Week.

Jan. 23 -- Executive order establishing a Committee on Government Activities Affecting Prices and Costs. (See p. 143)

Jan. 26 -- Message to the opening session of the Baghdad Pact's Sixth Ministerial Council session at Karachi.

Jan. 26 -- Message to Dr. Rajendra Prasad, president of India, on the anniversary of the Republic of India.

Jan. 26 -- Letter accepting the resignation of David S. Smith as Assistant Secretary of the Air Force.

THE TEXT OF PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S JAN 28 PRESS CONFERENCE

Following is the text of President Eisenhower's Jan. 28 press conference, the 48th of his second term, which was held one week after his 47th (Weekly Report p. 127):

LABOR MESSAGE

THE PRESIDENT: Good morning. Please sit down. This noon, ladies and gentlemen, I am sending my message on labor to the Congress. It has been prepared after exhaustive study of all the McClellan findings, and the purpose is to cover all of the abuses and difficulties that were brought out by that Committee, so as to improve the labor-management relationship, and to protect every working man and woman in this country, so far as law can do it, and to protect the public. So it will be a broadly based bill, because it is our conviction that this matter, if it is to be corrected, should be corrected at one time, and that is the proposal that I shall make.

Now, I am making -- I shall not talk about, this morning, about the details of that particular bill, because those recommendations -- because they are now going down at noon, but at a later time, why, of course, we can discuss them. Any questions?

ROLE IN PARTY

Q. MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH, Associated Press: Mr. President, how do you feel about the call at Des Moines and substance last week by the Republican campaign chairman in Congress for you, yourself, to take a more decisive and a more active role in restoring that hibernating elephant you mentioned?

THE PRESIDENT: I believe that I have stayed right persistent in my support for what I believe to be moderate government in this country. I believe that most Republicans understand this, know exactly what I mean, and support it. It is a, possibly, a difficult position to take as everybody who tries to take a middle-of-the-road position understands. You are subject to attack from both sides, and that is perfectly natural and proper, but you've got to take it from both sides, and my own opinion is that anyone who doesn't understand what this Administration has been standing for, after two platforms written by Republicans, and after six State-of-the-Union messages supported by budgetary and economic reports, must not have read as seriously as they should have.

SCHOOL DESEGREGATION VIEWS

Q. MERRIMAN SMITH, United Press International: Mr. President, wide circulation sir, is being given today to a report that Chief Justice Warren has communicated to friends his feeling that your stand on school desegregation is too indecisive. The Chief Justice is represented this morning as being pained by what was described as your failure to take forceful action.

THE PRESIDENT: He is what?

Q. SMITH: Your failure to take --

THE PRESIDENT: What is his reaction?

Q. SMITH: He is described this morning as being pained --

THE PRESIDENT: Oh, oh!

Q. SMITH: -- at what this story called your failure to take forceful action to implement the desegregation decision of the Court. If the Chief Justice has made known his feelings in this matter, would you like to do the same thing?

THE PRESIDENT: Well, so far as I am concerned here is some irresponsible reporting.

I have told you people a dozen times or certainly frequently, exactly what I feel about a President commenting publicly upon decisions of the Supreme Court. Now, I have regarded, and I am sure that everyone knows this also, that I have regarded the Chief Justice as my personal friend for years, and I know of no personal rift of any kind, and therefore I would believe that there is something that doesn't meet the eye here, and if the thing which you talk, speak of, is felt by the Chief Justice, I should think, and I am quite sure, that he is capable of telling me himself and doesn't have to take it to the public printer. (There was a chorus of "Mr. President.")

MIKOYAN VIEWS ON U.S. POLICY

Q. PETER LISAGOR, Chicago Daily News: Mr. President, when Mr. Mikoyan was here, he made the point that he seemed to feel that there were divisions between the American people, or those he talked to, and Government policies in the cold war. He also made this point when he got back to Moscow. I wonder if you could tell us whether you have had any personal reflections from friends in private life who may have talked with Mr. Mikoyan, that the United States Government might make agreements with Russia if it had a less rigid position.

THE PRESIDENT: No, no, I never did. What I did, and I think I reported this to you once before; possibly not; I had reports from friends around the country that called me up, one of them in California, I recall, saying it was obvious there was an attempt on the part of Mr. Mikoyan to make this interpretation, that the people in the Government were particularly divided on certain points, and might be Berlin or some other question. Now, because of these reports, they had, in certain instances, these friends made a special point of meetings -- a meeting with Mr. Mikoyan during the course of the evening, and asserting their belief that the United States, in its firmness in refusing to retreat a single inch from its rights and from its obligations and responsibility, that all of us were one; it didn't make any difference whether it was in Government or civil life. Now, I certainly tried to make that clear myself.

GOP CONFERENCE

Q. WILLIAM KNIGHTON, Baltimore Sun: Mr. President, getting back to the Des Moines oratory again for a moment, sir, have you given any serious consideration to the calling of another Mackinac conference in connection with the feelings of the leadership of the other people in the party?

THE PRESIDENT: For a long time, as a matter of fact, Mr. Knighton, starting back I think about November 6, I have been -- (Laughter) -- calling in together, calling together people from the Republican party and friends of the party, to ask them to undertake very earnest studies of exactly what we should do to get on a better road in explaining what we are about, what we are doing. Now, this isn't only -- this is not confined to the professionals; this is trying to get educators, friends of mine from all walks of life cooperating with the groups that the Chairman, Mr. Alcorn sets up, to see whether there is anything where we are just failing all along the line to put our story across. But just thinking of a conference like the Mackinac, I haven't anything like this at the moment. I do not rule it out if a group of responsible Republicans would want it done. (There was a chorus of "Mr. President.")

LOCAL CONTROL OVER SCHOOLS

Q. FRANK VAN DER LINDEN, Nashville Banner: Sir, the Alaska statehood bill gives the new state of Alaska perpetual control over its local school system. A constitutional amendment was introduced yesterday to give that same kind of local control over the schools to every state. Now, would you be in favor of Congress submitting such a constitutional amendment to the states?

THE PRESIDENT: Well, you are opening a question, a matter that I have not even heard about. I didn't know that there was any difference in the responsibility and authority of the new state of Alaska as compared to other states. And, I certainly would not make a comment on such a serious thing as substituting or as approving, or let us say favoring, because I wouldn't have any authority to approve, favoring a public constitutional amendment until I had studied and looked at it. (There was a chorus of "Mr. President.")

Q. ROBERT G. SPIVACK, New York Post: Mr. President -- THE PRESIDENT: Oh yes. I believe that you wanted to be recognized. (Laughter).

INFLATION TACTICS

Q. ROBERT G. SPIVACK, New York Post: Well, I made it. I would like to ask you a question about your tactics in the fight against inflation. Last -- well, on February 7, 1957, the New York Times reported as follows:

"President Eisenhower warned that the Government would have to impose price and wage controls unless business and labor used restraint to reinforce the Government's efforts to curb inflation."

Now, what I would like to know is why, or do you have any reason to feel that your repetition of this warning last week would be more effective now than it was then?

THE PRESIDENT: I say only this: I, and this, of course, we don't have the whole context of the statement -- certainly my meaning has been made clear time and time again. If we do not fight inflation effectively, eventually the people of this country are going to demand action that would be, in my opinion, antiethical to the whole concept of a true, free competitive enterprise. And when that happens, I think we have really gone quite a step backward, and I hope that it never will happen. If it becomes necessary, then it will be, as I say, a very sad day for America. But, I keep warning to see whether I can have any influence whatsoever in keeping that condition from coming about.

COPYING NEW DEAL

Q. EDWARD T. FOLLIARD, Washington Post: Mr. President, another question about the Des Moines Republican meeting. A United States Senator, commenting on a message you had sent to the Republicans, said that the Republicans should stop copying the New Deal. Do you feel that your Administration has copied the New Deal?

THE PRESIDENT: So far as I know, I have copied nothing in this world except what I believe are the principles, basic principles of Americanism, and then tried to apply those principles to the problems that now face us. I still remind you that no one has ever stated, defined, the proper functions of government better than did Abraham Lincoln, and you will recall he said: "The proper function of government is to do for people those things they cannot do at all, or not so well do individually." And, at the same time, he said: "And in everything else the government ought not to interfere." Now, I believe this is about as good a definition of the function of government as can possibly be made.

Different individuals and in different times apply this kind of a truth, this generalization, to the problem today, and they come up with somewhat different answers. But I know this: This Administration is dedicated to one thing, to take this kind of truth, this kind of principle, and applying it to the problems of today in the hope of seeing progress in America under a position of security in the world and with the best possible opportunity for developing a peaceful solution to international problems. (There was a chorus of "Mr. President.")

RUSSIAN ICBM PRODUCTION

Q. LLOYD M. SCHWARTZ, Fairchild Publications: Mr. President, what is your reaction to Premier Khrushchev's statement yesterday that Russia is now mass-producing these intercontinental ballistic missiles with pinpoint accuracy?

THE PRESIDENT: Well, I would say this: We seem very prone to give 100 percent credence to some statement of the Soviets, if it happens to touch upon our own anxieties or beliefs or convictions, and then some other statement we dismiss completely and we say, "Why, this is just another repetition of the old bald-faced lie." Now, I don't know exactly what Mr. Khrushchev has in mind. I do know this: Our missile system is going forward as rapidly as possible under the guidance of the finest scientists that we can accumulate. I believe that we are making, within the relatively short space of time we have had, remarkable progress. I think it is a matter for pride on the part of America, and not a constant -- well, hang-dog attitude of humiliation. Now, I do admit we, in this particular field, when our faith was apparently given to the air-breathing missile, rather than to the ballistic, that we were slow in starting. But we have started and from the earlier part of this Administration, this progress has not only been on the basis of the most urgent priority, but it has been very remarkably successful. (There was a chorus of "Mr. President.")

$60 BILLION BUDGET

Q. WILLIAM H. LAWRENCE, New York Times: In 1952, sir, Senator Taft stated after a conference with you an agreement you had for a $60 billion budget within a four year period. This goal is no longer attainable. Is it because world conditions have worsened greatly?

THE PRESIDENT: Well I think, Mr. Lawrence, the best answer to that question is this: First of all, of course prices have gone up some, I would say about 8 percent since that period, in spite of all the Government's efforts to keep them down. But, and that means, in some ways, more than an 8 percent cost, because some of these costs when reflected in munitions seem to get in the order of an experience, say, 20 percent increase. For example, I remember the last time that Secretary Wilson reported to me on outstanding contracts and bills, we had to appropriate $2½ billion more than had been calculated as the cost of those things. But, the second thing was this: We were then in the midst of the Korean war, and no one knew what was going to be the cost of these great programs -- defense, military programs that have since become necessary. Now, I don't think this is necessarily because of a worsening of the world situation, it is a realization of the need for a very large arsenal of complicated destructive weapons as long as we are to keep our deterrent power as strong and useful as we believe it must be. (There was a chorus of "Mr. President.")

BERLIN TALKS

Q. JOHN SCALI, Associated Press: Mr. President, Mr. Mikoyan in reporting on his trip to the United States on Saturday said that Russia might be willing to extend for a few days or a few months its Berlin deadline if talks with the West were underway by deadline time. Do you think that such talks with the Russians before that deadline would be useful?

THE PRESIDENT: Well, I think that any talks that deal fruitfully with the differences between our different peoples, our different governments, are useful. I want to point out that the United States has constantly desired to get the political questions with which we are faced in a broader context, to try to solve these political questions as a matter of principle, get some basic agreement, and then within that context to get all different technical and, you might say, mechanical self-enforcing types of agreements like -- protection, better assurance against surprise attack, a banning of testing of all kinds of the nuclear weapons -- that kind of thing is -- this agreement is the kind of agreement that we need if you are going to have a real effective result, but under which progress will be realized only, in my opinion, if we have a better general understanding about the peace of Europe, the readiness of both sides to renounce force and subversion in our efforts to maintain our positions in the world and to help our friends. And as to both sides, I would like to see some kind of a program that we could agree upon and which would have, within it, certain self-enforcing arrangements. By this I mean mutual inspection so that it would inspire mutual confidence. With such things I believe we could count on real progress and finally a -- a lightening of the load that all of us now have to carry. (There was a chorus of "Mr. President.")

SUPERLINER CONSTRUCTION

Q. MARY PHILOMENE VON HERBERG, Pacific Shipper: In your budget message you asked Congress to reconsider its action last year in authorizing the superliners to be built under direct Federal loans. You pointed out that such Federal loans would enable the shipping companies to borrow money at a lower rate of interest than the Government itself pays. I wondered, if Congress does as you requested of them, if you would be disposed to immediately request an appropriation to pay the Government's share for building these large passenger liners. One of them would be used on the Pacific and one would be on the Atlantic, and if you asked for it right away, they would start work on them right away; otherwise they are kind of stymied.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, there is no question that these two superliners were believed both by the shipping industry and by certain sectors -- I have forgotten all of the arguments now -- but certain sectors of the whole defense establishment to be necessary, or at least highly desirable in our shipping complement. As of this moment, to answer your -- your question, I cannot say now that if Congress did just so and so and so, that I would be prepared instantly. I would certainly, if Congress picked up my recommendation and enacted it, I would be right on the job to consider with people now what is the next move to make.

MEXICO VISIT

Q. SARAH McCLENDON, San Antonio Light: Mr. President, I want to know, sir, if you and Mrs. Eisenhower are going to Mexico within the next month, and if you will fly, and if you will go to Acapulco or Mexico City? (Laughter.)

THE PRESIDENT: Well, I can tell you one thing: Mrs. Eisenhower is not going to be there because she is not -- for that month is rather well mortgaged for her. Now, I want to point out, there is nothing definite about any meeting right now with the new president. I am anxious to perpetuate the custom that I started with President Luis Cortines, of having informal talks, friendly chats and really a friendly and useful correspondence, so that -- a correspondence that was made more valuable by the fact that we were personal acquaintances, and I have always thought more than that, friends. Now, just when that can be done, I am not sure. Nothing is definite. But I do say this, I would like to see him.

MEETINGS WITH POLITICIANS, OFFICIALS

Q. RAYMOND P. BRANDT, St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Mr. President, at Des Moines one of the criticisms of your Administration and of you personally is that you did not see enough of politicians and legislators. Have you any actions to take to answer that criticism?

THE PRESIDENT: You know, it's an odd thing, but -- these criticisms and how they get publicized and widespread. Starting way back in 1953 I had every single Congressman and every single Senator there was to my house, I had to do it in relays; it took a long time. I had them in just to make their acquaintanceship. And from that time onward, there has never been a time when I have not insisted, time and again, to the leaders, indeed, of both parties, that I am available and that I, when they want to see me about anything where they think I am making a mistake or about to make one or, indeed, that I just should start some new action, I would like to hear about it. And there have been, over the years, a great many of these individuals that I have invited, more often on my initiative than theirs, because possibly they don't want to bother me too much. At the same time, I don't feel like I should nag them.

But, if ever anyone has made clear his readiness to meet anyone, on either side, Governor, Congressman, or just -- let's say a politician outside of office, or anything else, I have been always available. And I particularly like to, used to get the educators in through stag dinners, things of that kind; I haven't done so much of that in later years because, as all of you know, I have tried to keep a schedule that is pretty logical and I think reasonable, but I still, as far as I know -- there is no one ever denied a right to come to my office if there is any reasonable position on which he makes the request. (There was a chorus of "Mr. President.")

THE PRESIDENT: Now, just behind you, please; the man behind you.

APPOINTMENT FOR EX-SEN. WATKINS

Q. GORDON WHITE, Salt Lake City Deseret News: Senator Watkins was one of your better supporters --

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

Q. WHITE: (Continuing) -- and when he was defeated there were reports that there was some offering of a job for him, and I believe it has been three months now, he is back in Utah. Is it correct to infer that you have been unable to find something for Senator Watkins?

THE PRESIDENT: Well now, there is no question about my respect for Senator Watkins. And, I think any discussion between him and me about a governmental job is rather a confidential matter. Now, there are certain posts that I would think he would be admirably fitted, but I have made -- in certain -- I have established certain criteria for appointments and it happens here that as a matter of age in the only position that I knew of at the moment, he would be disqualified on that basis. But let no one think that I have any loss of respect for his character, his ability and his friendship.

MEETING WITH TRUMAN

Q. GARNETT D. HORNER, Washington Star: Mr. President, are you considering a meeting with former President Truman in the reasonably near future?

THE PRESIDENT: Well the only thing I know is that I believe that in this -- what do you call it -- I guess it's a bi-partisan -- national commission that is arranging for a celebration of President Lincoln's 150th anniversary. I suppose everybody is being invited to this affair here in Washington. That's the only thing I know where everybody might be present because it is a bi-partisan affair. (There was a chorus of "Mr. President.")

FIDEL CASTRO

Q. ROBERT C. PIERPOINT, CBS News: It has been about three weeks, sir, since Fidel Castro was successful in overthrowing the Cuban government. I wonder if you could give us some of your impressions of Castro himself, and also tell us how you feel about some of the events that have developed since then?

THE PRESIDENT: No. I don't want to go into that kind of a thing. But, I will tell you what I will do, I'll just say this: I am certain this Government and all the American people hope that his government will be truly representative of the Cuban people, and that his government will achieve the ability to reflect their views, their aspirations and to encourage and help their progress. Now, as far as to indulge in anything about his own personality, I have no -- (There was a chorus of "Mr. President.")

THE PRESIDENT: The individual there --

NIXON VISIT TO RUSSIA

Q. CHARLES E. SHUTT, Telenews: Mr. President, I believe you stated, sir, that Mr. Mikoyan's visit in this country and your meeting with him was generally a good thing. Do you believe there was sufficient value there, sir, to warrant a personal and formal meeting with Premier Khrushchev, a meeting similar to that; and do you have any plans to send Vice President Nixon to Russia?

THE PRESIDENT: It seems to me I am getting a lot of double and triple-barreled questions this morning. (Laughter.) There have been no plans made to send anyone to Russia at this moment. Certainly I would not disagree with anyone's plan, if they want to do it, and if our Government thinks they should do it. But so far it has not been completely studied.

Now, so far as Mr. Khrushchev's visit is concerned: You couldn't do this on the informal way that Mr. Mikoyan did. Mr. Mikoyan came, I believe it was said, as a guest of the Embassy, and he got his visa on that basis. Well, you couldn't do that with the head of the government, and it would be something entirely different, so I think the situations are not comparable.

U.S. IMAGE ABROAD

Q. JOHN HERLING, Editors Syndicate: Recently, Ambassador Lodge took strong exception to a remark made by the Soviet Ambassador to the United Nations when he called, when the latter called the United States a capitalistic country. Mr. Lodge replied that the United States is no longer capitalistic, but is a country of economic humanism. Last night at Fordham University, Vice President Nixon, along the same lines, applauded the way U.S. labor leaders handled Mr. Mikoyan during his visit here, in contrast with that of some businessmen. Would you comment, sir, on what seems to be a new way of presenting the American image to the world?

THE PRESIDENT: Well, I think this: I don't believe that either of those people are necessarily wrong, because I believe there is no such thing as pure democracy, there is no such thing as pure competitive free enterprise; but there is, of course, and the nearest thing we have to what you might call a pure government is a pure dictatorship. Now, the pure dictatorship, at least in the case of Russia, has had to absorb into itself certain incentive action, incentives of a material kind that they certainly at one time never did contemplate. So, I would not say that our country is necessarily described as anything except -- a government, as Lincoln said, by, of and for the people. I believe that -- I believe it's a true definition, even though we are a republic, not a democracy, but I believe the Government of the United States, and certainly we pray it always will be so, it does, is responsive to the will of the people. It doesn't try to make any attempt to make itself the power that rules and governs the lives, the ambitions and aspirations of our people. Now, that is what I think America is.

Q. MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH, Associated Press: Thank you, Mr. President.

SENATE CONFIRMATIONS

The Senate Jan. 28 confirmed the following nominations:

Livingston T. Merchant of the District of Columbia, a career diplomat, as an Assistant Secretary of State, George C. Lodge of Massachusetts, a Republican, as an Assistant Secretary of Labor, Harry A. Bullis, of Minnesota, a Republican, as Chairman of the International Development Advisory Board.

John O. Bell of Maryland, as Special Assistant for Mutual Security Coordination, Department of State.

Leonard J. Saccio of Connecticut, as Deputy Director of the International Cooperation Administration, Department of State.

Julian H. Zimmerman of Kansas, as Commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration.

Francis A. O'Neill Jr. of New York, a Republican, as a Member of the National Mediation Board. O'Neill's nomination was sent to the Senate Jan. 23.

Capitol Briefs

GASOLINE TAX

Gov. Price Daniel (D) Texas Jan. 25 said 28 Governors had agreed to join him in opposing President Eisenhower's proposal for an increase in the Federal gasoline tax from 3 cents to 4½ cents. Daniel said he and Democratic Govs. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan and James T. Blair Jr. of Missouri would join two unnamed GOP Governors to form a committee to fight the President's proposal, made in his Jan. 19 budget message. On Capitol Hill, House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D Texas) Jan. 20 said the tax proposal stood little chance of adoption because the states felt "they should have that field of taxation -- or what's left of it." His views were echoed in statements by Democratic Sens. Pat McNamara (Mich.) and Thomas J. Dodd (Conn.). (Weekly Report p. 99)

CONTEMPT CONVICTION

A Federal jury in Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 22 found Carl Braden, of Louisville, Ky., guilty of contempt of Congress for refusing to answer six questions put to him by the House Un-American Activities Committee at a hearing in Atlanta July 30, 1958. Braden had pleaded the First Amendment when questioned on Communist activities in the South. (1958 Almanac p. 709)

WATER RESOURCES

Sens. Mike Mansfield and James E. Murray (both D Mont.) Jan. 27 introduced a resolution (S Res 48) to establish a special Senate committee to study and coordinate legislative recommendations for water conservation and development programs. The committee, which under the terms of the resolution would expire Jan. 31, 1961, would be composed of eight members drawn from three standing committees concerned with water problems: three from the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, three from Public Works and two from Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

BUDGET REACTION

President Eisenhower's budget for fiscal 1960 "arrests temporarily, but does not reverse, the general upward trend in spending," the Council of State Chambers of Commerce declared Jan. 26. According to Eugene F. Rinta, director of research, neither price inflation nor an increasing population explained an increase, between 1955 and 1960, of $6.3 billion in domestic non-defense spending. He ascribed the rise to three factors: the liberalization of benefits and subsidies under existing programs, enactment of new spending programs "in response to special interest demands," and "the failure of Congress to review" legislative authorizations. Rinta concluded: "The President's plea for public support to hold down spending deserves the broadest possible affirmative response -- but a response aimed at a much lower level of spending in 1960 and beyond than his Administration now contemplates."

HIGHWAY SLOWDOWN FOUGHT

Speakers at the 40th annual convention of the Associated General Contractors of America Jan. 19-22 in Bal Harbour, Fla., opposed any stretch-out in the Federal program to build highways.

Chairman Albert Gore (D Tenn.) of the Senate Public Works Public Roads Subcommittee Jan. 20 said he would fight any attempt to delay completion of the highways under the Highway Act of 1956.

Rather than try to save money through a stretch-out beyond the 1969 target date, Gore recommended closing tax loopholes and re-examining tax credits for foreign taxes and on dividend income, depletion allowances and rules governing expense accounts.

Ralph R. Bartelsmeyer, president of the American Assn. of State Highway Officials, Jan. 20 said any delay in the highway building program would create "serious" financial problems in the states.

Federal Highway Administrator Bertram D. Tallamy, spokesman for the Eisenhower Administration on the highway program, Jan. 20 said the highway program would have to be cut back unless Congress appropriated more money for it. He said President Eisenhower's recommendation to increase the Federal gasoline tax by 1½ cents was designed to raise the necessary money to do the job.

Tallamy said there was $663 million left in the Highway Trust Fund as of Dec. 1, 1958. He said that reserve would be reduced, however, during the remainder of fiscal 1959 and in fiscal 1960 because tax revenue would not keep pace with highway expenditures. This, he said, is why the Administration seeks additional taxes.

Chairman George H. Fallon (D Md.) of the House Public Works Roads Subcommittee Jan. 22 said any slowdown in the highway construction program would be "tragic" for the national economy as well as the highway industry. He said remedial legislation was necessary to supply the needed money, but did not specify how the money was to be raised.

GERMAN COAL TARIFF

The Coal Exporters Assn. and the National Coal Assn. Jan. 27 in separate statements protested the proposed West German tariff of $4.76 a ton on imports of U.S. coal. The new tariff is subject to approval by the West German Parliament.

John S. Routh, president of the exporters group, said West Germany plans to set a quota of 3.5 million tons of American coal which could be imported duty-free. He predicted that since the quota would be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1959, the new tariff would go into effect by May. He asked the State Department to protest the coal policy.

Tom Pickett, NCA executive vice president, wrote Secretary of State John Foster Dulles that the action would "effectively deprive the U.S. of about 60 percent of its largest overseas market for bituminous coal."

The exporters group and the coal association are separate organizations but work through the same Washington office. They sent copies of their protest to Members of Congress from coal-producing states.

MERCHANT MARINE

Ralph E. Casey, president of the American Merchant Marine Institute, Jan. 20 expressed hope that the "re-appraisal" of the Merchant Marine Act of 1936 by the Executive Branch and Congress, proposed by President Eisenhower in his budget message, would be limited to "a job of modernizing." He said the basic framework of the act was sound, specifically the requirement that merchant ships be replaced when they are 20 years old. In the budget message, President Eisenhower said that the bulk of the existing U.S. merchant fleet was built between 1942 and 1946 and that because of the 20-year replacement requirement, a "realistic life span" of merchant ships should be established. Casey said he saw in the President's language "a threat to extending the present life of American merchant vessels from 20 to 25 or even 30 years." He added that foreign competitors of the U.S. already had started replacing their war-built fleets which were bought from the U.S. after World War II.

OIL IMPORTS

The executive committee of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America Jan. 20 said that early and effective action to limit oil imports was "clear and demanding" and that such a program would be forthcoming soon from a Presidential cabinet committee studying the problem. The committee also said: "corrective" legislation was needed to free natural gas producers from Federal Power Commission regulation; the President's proposed gasoline tax hike from three to 4½ cents a gallon would mean an average tax of 10½ cents or about 50 percent of retail prices; elimination of the 27.5 percent depletion allowance for oil and gas producers would necessitate an increase in gasoline prices of at least five cents per gallon to satisfy capital requirements of the industry.

ECONOMIC REPORT COMMENT

Walter P. Reuther, chairman of the AFL-CIO Economic Policy Committee, Jan. 22 said the President's Jan. 20 Economic Report revealed a "growing obsession" with balancing the budget by cutting back Government programs at a time "when realistic economic thinking dictates the achievement of a full employment, full production economy as the only feasible way to achieve a balanced budget." (Weekly Report p. 96)

Reuther said the report ignored "the Nation's most immediate national economic problem, the continuing high level of unemployment," disregarded the "intolerably low" living standards of "millions" of Americans and, in the face of Soviet industrial growth, did nothing to raise the U.S. rate of industrial growth, which Reuther said totaled only 7 percent from 1953 to 1957.

Reuther also said the President saw nothing wrong with the envisioned one-third increase in corporate profits in 1959 while at the same time urging union leaders to show restraint in asking wage increases, in order to fight inflation. Reuther said wage increases won by unions were a necessary support to a high level of economic growth.

Pressure Points

● AMERICAN BAR ASSN. -- Sen. Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D Mo.) Jan. 20 introduced a bill (S 600) to carry out ABA recommendations regarding Federal administrative practice. The bill would appoint a corps of hearing commissioners and establish a legal career service to improve legal services in the Government. A similar bill was introduced in the 85th Congress but was not voted on.

● NATIONAL ASSN. OF MANUFACTURERS -- Michigan State Supreme Court Justice Eugene Black Jan. 24 in Detroit said the NAM was leading an "anvil chorus of partisan censure" against the Michigan and U.S. Supreme Courts.

● NATIONAL ASSN. FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF COLORED PEOPLE -- Roy Wilkins, executive secretary, Jan. 22 said the civil rights bill (S 499) introduced by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D Texas) was "a sugar-coated pacifier," designed "to block consideration of effective legislation in this field."

● NATIONAL FEDERATION OF THE BLIND -- Rep. Thomas J. Lane (D Mass.) Jan. 22 said the Federation's 40,000 members had protested that "they are being treated as second-class citizens," and that it was "indefensible that a few state agencies and a minority of social workers consider the blind as incompetent wards, and oppose their right to organize in their own interest." He introduced a bill (HR 187) requiring the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to consult with authorized representatives of the blind in formulating programs for their aid. Many other Members of Congress have introduced similar bills.

● RAILWAY LABOR EXECUTIVES' ASSN. -- The organization, comprised of the heads of railway labor groups, Jan. 17 said it would "use every legal resource possible" to prevent railroads from abandoning passenger service. G.E. Leighty, chairman, said RLEA attorneys would study ways of taking direct legal action to prevent service abandonment and would try to amend the Transportation Act of 1958. The act authorized railroads to abandon non-profitable passenger service. (1958 Almanac p. 244)

Within each category are Senate bills in chronological order followed by House bills in chronological order. Bills are described as follows: Bill number, brief description of provisions, sponsor's name, date introduced and committee to which bill was assigned. Bills sponsored by more than one Senator are listed under the first sponsor, with additional sponsors listed. Private bills are not listed.

In the House identical bills are sponsored by several Members but each bill has only one sponsor and one number. In most cases only the first bill introduced -- that with the lowest bill number -- is described in full. Bills introduced subsequently during the period and identical in nature are cited back to the earliest bills. Private bills are not listed.

The Week In Congress

Top Choices Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. Stuart Symington (D Mo.) are rated as their parties' strongest possible Presidential candidates by Congressional Republicans and Democrats who responded to a CQ Poll. Nixon has a 4½-to-1 lead over New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller (R). Symington has a 2-1 lead over Sen. John F. Kennedy (D Mass.), with Sens. Lyndon B. Johnson (D Texas) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D Minn.) and Adlai E. Stevenson rounding out the list of the top five Democrats. Kennedy and Rockefeller are the leading choices for Vice President. (Page 135)

Storm Signals

President Eisenhower sent his labor message to Congress Jan. 28 amid signs Republican Congressional leaders were preparing for a sharp floor fight in support of his recommendations. Presidential proposals likely to cause the most controversy called for stronger laws against secondary boycotts, outlawing of what the President has called "blackmail" organizational picketing and granting the states power to take jurisdiction in some labor disputes the National Labor Relations Board now has the exclusive right to handle. (Page 142, 146)

In the Committee Rooms

Committee hearings on major items in the 1959 program of the Democratic leadership got under way last week. In the Senate, the status of U.S. defenses was explored by the Armed Services Committee, the controversial housing and airport aid bills were taken up by the Banking and Commerce Committees and the problem of "administered price inflation" was examined by the Judiciary Committee. In the House, the Interior Committee held hearings on Hawaii statehood, and the Armed Services Committee discussed extension of the draft law. In other developments, three Republican Senators switched committee assignments and four new members were appointed to the House District Committee. (Page 139)

Classroom Shortage

The U.S. Office of Education released its latest figures on the national shortage of classrooms. They indicate communities have done little more than keep pace with the influx of new students. The backlog of classrooms needed to ease crowding and replace old facilities remains at 140,000, only 1-1/4 percent less than the backlog of the previous school year. So, say proponents of Federal aid for school construction, only U.S. dollars will do the job. Opponents answer that it is up to the states to take care of school needs. (Page 144)

Bills, Bills, Bills

Nearly 5,000 pieces of legislation have been introduced in the Senate and House since the 86th Congress opened Jan. 7, and of these most were introduced during the first few days of the session. This issue of the Weekly Report contains a 57-page record of all public bills and resolutions introduced through Jan. 22, broken down into eight major subject categories. Subsequent issues of the Weekly Report will carry bills introduced on a current basis. (Page 154)

Campaigner Goldwater

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R Ariz.), newly elected chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, is a politician who has never lost a race for public office and an outspoken advocate of conservative Republicanism. A CQ profile notes the fact that while Goldwater's views on organized labor are controversial, even among Republicans, his voting record in general is very much in the mainstream of Republican Senatorial opinion. He lags behind most of his colleagues, however, in the amount of support he has given President Eisenhower's legislative program, differing with the Chief Executive on several key foreign policy measures. (Page 138)

Sick Elephant

"Sobering facts" on the decline of the Republican party came from GOP National Committee Chairman Meade Alcorn at a meeting of party workers. Few argued with his conclusion that the sick elephant needed a strong tonic, but there was sharp dispute over the nature of the ailment. Out into the open finally came the resentment of conservatives at what they regard as the President's indifference to GOP needs. They also eyed cautiously Alcorn's call for a new party image, as an essential in a new "program of action." (Page 137)
